BERMUDA

Capital, HAMILTON

A group of islands in the Atlantic Ocean, about 700 nautical miles southwest of New York, occupying a space of only 20½ square miles. The climate is delightful, without extremes of heat or cold; the temperature averages 70.7 degrees. The five largest islands are connected by bridges and causeways. They are of coral formation on the summit of a submarine mountain. The islands, part of the British empire, have their own representative government for local affairs, with the oldest parliament among all the British Colonies.

The extremely fertile soil produces almost every description of fruit, flowers and vegetables in great abundance. Potatoes, tomatoes, bananas, carrots, cabbags, onions, beans, sweet potatoes and salad vegetables, together with Easter Lily flowers and bulbs, are the chief crops. Two crops a year are harvested.

The islands, popular as an all year round pleasure and health resort, are visited by thousands of tourists from the United States, Canada, England and elsewhere. Weekly voyages of luxury ships, and daily airline flights bring visitors direct to Bermuda from New York.

Bermuda is the headquarters of the British Atlantic and West Indies Fleet. There are over 100 miles of paved roads, with transportation by bicycle, horse and carriage, ferries, small British cars and taxis, busses and autocycles.

REPUBLIC OF PANAMA

Republic of Panama Population 805,285 (Census of Panama, 1950)

Canal Zone Population 52,822 (U. S. Census, 1950)

The Republic of Panama is situated between 7° and 10° north latitude and 77° and 84° west longitude. It is bounded on the north by the Caribbean Sea, east by Columbia, south by the Gulf of Panama and the Pacific Ocean, and west by Costa Rica. The area is 28,575 square miles.

The climate is entirely tropical with warm days and cool nights, the temperature at Colon varying from 68° to 95° F. Under direction of American health authorities of the Canal Zone modern sanitation has made Panama one of the most healthy spots in the tropics. The concentration of population is in the towns, chiefly Panama at the Pacific end of the Canal and Colon on the Caribbean.

There are some gold mines. Oil has been found and copper and iron have been located. There are also important salt mines. The Panama Canal brings to Panama the largest tonnage of shipping of any country in Latin America. In 1953, imports amounted to $71,602,929, and exports were valued at $15,495,282. Chief of the exports were bananas, frozen shrimp, abaco fibers and cement. Rice, tobacco, rubber, coffee, pineapples and sugar cane are also raised and stock raising is extensively carried on. Principal imports are foodstuffs and beverages, textiles and manufactures, machinery, chemical products and metals. Trade is chiefly with the United States.

Nine commercial banks operate in the Republic, with total deposits (12-31-52), $77,992,900. Tourism is a major source of income in Panama. The airports at Bocas del Toro and David, as well as that in Panama City, operate with international service.

The Canal Zone is situated between 8° and 10° north latitude and 79° and 81° west longitude. It is a strip of territory extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific Oceans, includes five miles of land on each side of the Panama Canal, and is under perpetual lease to the United States. Its land area is 372 square miles, its total area, 648 square miles.

Cristobal, formerly a part of Colon, is the Caribbean port of entrance to the Canal, and that at the Pacific entrance is Balboa. East of Panama is the residential town of Ancon, with a hotel and a hospital. The Panama Railway runs on the eastern side of the canal. The canal is 50.72 statute miles long.

All industrial activities within the Canal Zone are controlled by the Government which holds the title to all land. The Zone is fortified and occupied by a garrison in addition to the civilian employees of the Canal and railroad. Airports are maintained at France Field on the Caribbean side and at Albrook Field on Balboa Heights on the Pacific side. A part of the territory is adapted to stock raising, growing of tropical fruits and sugar cane.

REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES

Population 19,234,182 (1948 Census)

Capital, QUEZON CITY, (Luzon)

The Republic of the Philippines comprises the largest island group in the Malay Archipelago. There are 7,083 separate islands in this area which extends 1,152 miles from north to south and 688 miles from east to west. Of this large number 462 have an area each of one square mile or more. Eleven have an area of more than 1,000 square miles each. Total land area of islands is 114,830 square miles.

After nearly a half century as a territory of the United States, the Philippine Islands became an independent republic in 1946. Quezon City is the capital.

The port of Manila offers the finest harbor in the entire Far East. Other ports of entry are Cebu, Iloilo, Zamboanga, Jolo, Legaspi and Davao, and there are about 200 ports of call for inter-island vessels. The larger islands are mountainous with altitudes rising in places to more than 10,000 feet. Rainfall is abundant throughout the archipelago, varying from 60 inches in the driest district to 157 in the wettest. There are three seasons: the most agreeable, from November to March; the hot and dry season, from March to July; the rainy, from July to November.

POPULATION

Ninety-nine per cent of the people are Filipinos; the remaining percentage is made up of: Chinese, Japanese, Americans, Spaniards, Britons, Hindus, Dutch, Italians and Swiss. The American population is mostly centered in Manila. Although eight distinct languages and 87 dialects are spoken, English is the most widely used. The basis for the national language is the Tagalog dialect, spoken by one third of the people.

AGRICULTURE

The cultivation of many crops heretofore imported but which may be grown locally is now being emphasized in agricultural development. Average size of the farms is 10 acres, but there are many large plantations. For the crop year ending 6-30-52, the estimated value of agricultural production was $750,845,120. This does not include the value of sugar, molasses, copra and all other manufactured agricultural products. Chief crops were unhusked rice, shelled corn, coconut, sugar cane, abaca, root crops and tobacco. The principal export fruit is the pineapple, but there are also bananas, mangoes, papaya, lanzones, pilinut, chico, mandarins and oranges. Other export products are: sugar, fiber, minerals, and forest products.

FORESTRY

Timber for construction purposes and for various types of lumber production is produced in large quantities. Rattan and bamboo, also dye woods and barks for tanning purposes, as well as rubber and gums and resins are in considerable production. Lumber production in 1952 was 436,969,000 board feet. Philippine forests cover 68,200 square miles.

MINERALS

Gold production and the future of the gold mining industry are of increasing importance in the islands. Exploration and the mining of gold and other metals is progressing. In 1952, gold production was valued at more than $16,200,000, placing the Philippines eighth among world gold producers. In addition, the islands produce silver, lead, zinc, copper, iron, coal, petroleum, chromite, asbestos and manganese. In 1946, important deposits of uranium were located. Salt and clay are also found. The main islands have a wide variety of natural resources. The coal fields already located are estimated at close to 100 square miles in area, and contain both hard and soft coal.

MISSCELLANEOUS

Number of telephones (1952), 81,240. Motor vehicles registered (1952), 106,944. Number of families having radios (1952 est.), 150,000. Number of retail stores (1951), 137,128, with gross receipts of $489,092,882. Number of radio stations (1952), 38.
